The Summer School refers to the question whether democracy and market economy contribute to internal and external conflict prevention or resolution.

During the Summer School we discuss how democratic and market-oriented reforms proceed, which strategies and concepts are relevant, which institutional barriers arise and what role the European Union and the Russian Federation play in forming the international arena of conflict.

Graduate students from Ukraine, Moldova, Armenia, Georgia and Azerbaijan are welcome to join the Summer School. Those interested in participating are invited to apply via E-Mail until 31st of March 2015.

We invite applications of no more than two pages, including a letter of motivation and a short biographical sketch. The selection of participants will be based on their originality, their scientific quality and their explicit reference to the Summer School topic.

Submit your application to both:
